Important to Farmers.

Mr. Willis G. Johnson, Maryland State Entomologist, has issued a special circular of instructions for the destruction of noxious insects. For the tobacco cut worm Mr. Johnson advises the making of a mush composed of fifty pounds of bran, two quarts of molasses and one pound of paris green. The worms like this sweet substance, and will eat it in preference to the plants. A little of the mixture put at each tobacco hill a few days before the plants are set out will draw the worms out of the ground and kill them.—Louisville Weed.

The healthy old man wears his gray hairs like a silver crown. What if he be threescore and ten if there is still fire in his eye, firmness in his step, command in his voice and wisdom in his counsel? He commands love and reverence. Yet how few wear the mantle of age with dignity. Dim eyed, querulous of speech, halting in step, childish in mind, they "lag superfluous on the stage," dragging out the rag end of life in a simple existence. The secret of a healthy old age is a healthy middle age. The man who takes care of his stomach, who keeps his body properly nourished, will find that the body does not fail him in old age. The great value of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery lies in the preservation of the working power of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. From this center is distributed the nourishment of the whole body, the salt for the blood, the lime for the bones, phosphorus for the brain and nerves. A sound stomach means a sound man. A man who keeps his stomach sound by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" will wear the crown of gray hairs as befits a monarch, with dignity and ease.

Gov. Beckham's Present Plans

Gov. Beckham will not only retain his office at the Capital Hotel for a while, but will also keep that as his residence till his personal affairs are settled. ## THE NEWSPAPER MAN.

A Vivid Description of His Life and Calling.

In every city of the land the newspaper man is an outcast, says Gerald Stanley Lee, in the Atlantic. He knows more people to be a stranger to than any other being in the world. He has no holidays. His Christmas is the record of other men's joys. His Thanksgiving is a restaurant. Even the Fourth of July and Sunday, servants of the commonest man, refuse him their cheer. The Fourth of July is the day he must be in every place at once, because something is happening; and Sunday is the day he must make things up, because nothing is happening. His labors are our pleasures. He gets his vacation by doing another man's work, and earns his living by watching other people live. The very days and the nights turn their natural backs upon him. The lamp is his sun by night, and the curtain is his night by day, and he eats his supper in the morning. His business is the reflection of life. He is the spirit behind the mirror. What is left to us is right to him, and right is left; sometimes right side up, is upside down. The world is all awry to the newspaper man. It whirls across the hours in columns, now in one edition and now in another, but it needs him never in return. He is a spectator. The show passes before his face—a shut-out, unshining face. He lives as the years go on, a notebook under the stars, and when the notebook is scribbled out he dies.

Men who might be immortal, morning after morning, week after week, year after year, fighting to be allowed to live in the current of a day, reaching in vain for something that lasts longer than a day to hold to, only to go under like the rest—a few bubbles—a two-inch obituary at the bottom of a column, by the man who is going under next, and the story is told. The man who can furnish quantity and quality at once, who can thrive on the impossible, who can swim in the whirlpool instead of being carried with it, is a man who sums up in himself not only the definition of what the problem is, in literature, today, but the answer to the problem.

A NEEDED DEVICE.

Paper Fed Automatically to the Printing Press.

For some time past inventors have been looking for a device by which paper may be fed automatically to the printing press. M. Rymont-Rives, of Geneva, has, after six years of work, perfected a device which accomplishes this operation in a satisfactory manner, and has lately applied it with success to several large presses in that city. This automatic feeder may be applied to all kinds of printing presses, as well as to letter and folding machines. It is very simple in construction, and the changes necessary to accommodate the different sizes may be easily and quickly made. The device consists of two distinct parts, the feeder proper and the distributor; the feeder has two movable arms carrying jaws at the ends which take up the sheet of paper on the upper table and bring it to the level of the inclined table below, where the arms of the press carry it to the form. The distributor also takes up the sheet of paper on the upper table and bring it to the level of the inclined table below, where the arms of the press carry it to the form. The distributor also takes up the sheet of paper on the upper table and bring it to the level of the inclined table below, where the arms of the press carry it to the form.

The Winchester City Council has placed a license of $50 per day upon business men who come to town for a few days and retail stocks of merchandise. The license is to be paid to the city clerk, and the merchants are thus protected.

Strange Patagonian Animal.

Dr. Rudolph Hauthal, who visited the cave in Patagonia where Dr. Nordenskjöld found the skin of the mysterious animal called neomylodon by Dr. Ameghino, its discoverer, has published an article on it in the Revista del Museo de la Plata. Dr. Hauthal himself discovered other pieces of skin and bones of the animal in the Nordenskjöld cavern. Associated with them he found bones of man, the dog, horse, cat and other animals, as well as bone and stone implements. The cave is near Conchudo Grove, Last Hope inlet, west coast of southern Patagonia, and there are others near still unexplored. Dr. Roth believes the skin that of the sloth, Grypotherium, of Rheinhardt, whose fossils are found in the beds of the pampas further north. Dr. Hauthal thinks that the caves were inhabited by man and domesticated animals, including sloths, during an interglacial period.—London Globe.

A woman shoplifter is en route east from Denver. She has three arms and wears a cape. One arm is artificial, and it is said she has a line of aliases longer than her train.

Fall of a High Chimney.

A brick chimney, 160 feet high and 8½ feet square at the base, and 4½ feet diameter at the top, has been overthrown in St. Louis by the use of hydraulic jacks, says the Engineer. The chimney was first undermined on one side, and three ten-ton hydraulic jacks were placed in position under the side. A hawser was then fastened about the chimney, 60 feet from the ground, and ropes led from the hawser to crabs placed at a distance of about 100 feet from the chimney. With eight men at each crab, and men at the hydraulic jacks, the chimney was slightly lifted and pulled at the same time; the men at the jacks left their posts at the first warning crack, but those at the crabs continued their work until the chimney fell.—Scientific American.

Taylor's Troops Leave Frankfort.

While the Taylor troops broke camp with pleasing celerity and scooted for home on Monday afternoon, the capitulation of Gen. Dan Collier to Gen. John B. Castleman did not take place until Tuesday morning, when formal communications passed between the heads of the respective Democratic and Republican military establishments, and arms and ammunition in the hands of the Republicans were turned over to the Democratic official.
